Wound Prevention and Management - The Role of Occupational Therapy

Join our presenter as she engages participants on February 18th to:

- discuss the need for an interprofessional approach to chronic wound prevention and management, including the vital role of occupational therapy
- link occupational therapy interventions to chronic wound outcomes
- establish best practice guidelines and resources that can form a foundation for occupational therapists interested in this area

Name That Wound: Understanding the Etiology of Wounds to Inform Practice

Join our presenter as she engages participants on March 9th to:

- understand the etiology of each time a chronic wound would help guide practice
- identify different types of wounds and their basic etiology, including typical causes
- discuss key questions that will help to inform the client assessment and treatment
- discover key resources for occupational therapists interested in this area of practice

Target Audience:

The target audience for these webinars are occupational therapists across all settings who work with clients with chronic disease or mobility impairments.

About our presenter:

Linda's career has focused on the provision of adapted equipment including mobility aids. She has completed the International Interprofessional Wound Care Course, a Masters in Community Health and is a PhD Candidate at the University of Western Ontario. Linda has participated in best practice guideline development and regularly presents workshops across Canada, and teaches at two Universities.
